

Prepare for Your Obesity Treatment in Turkey

Documents and Visa Requirements

- A valid passport is required for international travel to Turkey.
- Visa requirements vary by country; visit e-Visa or the Turkish consulate website for specific information.
- Medical documents needed: medical history, diagnostic tests, and a referral from a healthcare provider.
- Diagnostic tests such as a thyroid ultrasound, Anti TPO test, and Anti-HIV test may be provided by clinics in Turkey if not available beforehand.

Accommodation Options

Options for accommodation include partner 5* hotels with discounts or self-booking. Clinics may offer free accommodation, but it is subject to their policies. Average hotel stay per night can range from $50 to $150. Accompanying person's stay conditions vary; some clinics may allow them to stay for free, while others may require payment.

Transfer Services

- Many clinics offer free airport-hotel-clinic transfers.
- Popular taxi services like BiTaksi and iTaksi are available, with approximate prices starting from $0.40 per kilometer.

Interpreter Services

Interpreter services are often available and can be free or come with a fee, depending on the clinic's policy.

Payment Methods

- Accepted payment options include cash and credit/debit cards.
- The local currency is the Turkish Lira, and having it is recommended for convenience.
- Payments in dollars or euros are accepted in some places, but exchanging some money into local currency is advised.

Before Your Obesity Treatment

- Consult with your primary care physician before traveling for surgery.
- Ensure you have all necessary vaccinations as per Turkey's health regulations.
- Follow any pre-surgery diet or health instructions provided by your surgeon.
- Plan for a recovery period and necessary support in Turkey after the procedure.
- Carry your medical records and medication list with you.
- Understand the risks and benefits of the procedure you are undergoing.
- Keep emergency contact information handy.
- Ensure you have adequate travel and medical insurance coverage.
